Everything you want to know about the Dutch expat life, under one roof: on Sunday 4 October 2020, the 18th edition of Amsterdam's renowned i am not a tourist Expat Fair is shaking up the stunning Beurs van Berlage in the heart of Amsterdam. Explore what the Netherlands has to offer, including this year's highlights: "Jobs for Expats", "Houses for Expats" and "Education for Expats".

Check out a video impression of the day and get your free ticket right now!

Every year we give you the chance to take part in engaging and useful workshops, mingle with thousands of fellow internationals and network with companies from across the country in what has become the largest expat focussed event in the Netherlands. And, what's more, it's free!

Living, Working & Studying in the Netherlands

We have over 125 exhibitors and 40 professional presentations arranged around the themes of Relocation, Finance, Employment, Families, Healthcare, Education, Transport, Housing and Setting Up Home. Next to that we have an entertaining programme.

So whether you have just moved to Holland, are a long-term resident, or a digital nomad the i am not a tourist Expat Fair promises everything you need to know about living, working and enjoying your time here.

This year's fair will be the biggest yet; offering more than 3,000 expats the chance to talk with professionals from diverse industries and explore a wide variety of social clubs, volunteering and entrepreneurial opportunities. For families with children, the Expat Fair has a dedicated kids' area managed by childcare professionals.

Special Housing, Education and Jobs themes

This year the Employment and Housing themes at the fair will be extra highlighted, recognizable with the 'Jobs for Expats', 'Houses for Expats' and 'Education for Expats' signage.

Jobs for Expats : employers, experts, job coaches and recruiters will be on hand to help internationals wishing to build a professional network, continue their education, pursue their career or succeed as an entrepreneur. Bring your CV! Note: only exhibitors with the Jobs for Expats signage offer multilingual vacancies.

Houses for Expats: There are many homes in the Netherlands available for expats looking to buy or rent, that is why we introduce this year at the Expat Fair 'Houses for Expats'. Getting an understanding of tenants' rights and property law is a must. At the fair you will find among others real estate agents, short stay residences, mortgage advisers, and notaries to help you find answers to your questions regarding housing in the Netherlands.

Education for Expats: The Netherlands is committed to choice in Dutch education and expats find a huge range of schools and universities in the Netherlands to consider when enrolling their child into the Dutch education system, including numerous international schools of which some are also subsidised. The Dutch school system, however, is quite unique and the choice can be confusing for internationals. During the Expat Fair Amsterdam expats can meet several schools and universities follow presentations to help them to understand the Netherlands education system. So they can make their choice from the multitude of schools to enrol their child into the Netherlands school system.

Time to get in touch with all things Dutch

Whatever your question, from 'How do I set up a bank account and do my taxes?' to 'What is the best childcare, school or university for my child?' the i am not a tourist Expat Fair can point you in the right direction. Both settled expats and new arrivals can find out about study, clubs and cultural activities.

There will be interesting live performances and presentations, for all ages, on the main stage. Our extensive program also includes a variety of workshops to help you integrate into life in the Netherlands. For families with children, the Expat Fair has a dedicated kids' area managed by childcare professionals, Hestia Kinderopvang.

Whether you have lived in the Netherlands for days, months, years, or are yet to move - you are not a tourist! So make sure you keep Sunday 4th October 2020 free!
